

X

Read README.md first — it has the link format and the link test that this guide assumes you have done.

What works today: an X post or a Website Traffic ad carries the property link, the person lands on the client's website, and the enquiry reaches the CRM.

What does not: X has no native lead-form product connected to this CRM, and the X Pixel is not installed.

1. X requires a paid subscription before you can advertise

This is the difference that catches people out. Facebook, Instagram, and TikTok let you open an ad account for free. X does not: the account running ads must be verified through a paid subscription first.

A business advertises through the tier for organisations. In October 2025 X renamed and split that product — Premium Business (gold check) is the business tier; Premium Organizations (grey check) is for governments and multilateral bodies.

An individual advertises through X Premium.

Check the current tiers and prices in the account before committing, and budget for the subscription on top of ad spend.

X also enforces profile quality rules before ads will run:

Profile photo and header image must be real images, not GIFs.

The bio must contain a working URL that is live, not behind a login or paywall, and genuinely represents what you are advertising.

The account and its posts must be public.

The bio URL rule is worth using deliberately: point it at the property page with `utm_source=x&utm_medium=social&utm_content=x-bio`. It satisfies the requirement and captures profile traffic at the same time.

2. Accounts

Prepare the client-owned handle: real business name, profile photo, header image, complete bio, verified email, confirmed phone number, and public posts. Post a few times before applying — a brand-new empty account is more likely to be rejected.

Subscribe to the appropriate verification tier and wait for it to be applied.

Open X Ads Manager and create the ads account. Set the country and currency correctly; these are not easily changed.

Add the payment method in the client's name, with a billing address matching the stated business location.

Give each person their own access at the level they need. Do not share the login.

3. Every X link goes through `t.co`

X rewrites all links in posts and ads to a `t.co` address. You cannot switch this off, and you should not try to work around it.

It is harmless: `t.co` redirects to your full URL, so the parameters still reach the property page. But it means one redirect hop is already spent. Do not add a shortener or a redirect of your own on top of it — the link test in README.md exists mainly to prove the parameters survive this hop.

4. Publish a post

Sign in as the client's account.

Write the post and paste the complete property link. X shows a `t.co` link and usually a preview card — that is expected.

The post text must agree with the property page on price, availability, location, and who is selling, and must carry the registration details the page shows.

Attach your own or licensed images.

Post, then open it in a logged-out browser and click the link.

To schedule, use the scheduling control in the post composer and check the scheduled queue afterwards.

5. Run a Website Traffic ad

X campaigns have three levels: campaign, ad group, and the posts promoted within it.

Campaign

In X Ads Manager, create a campaign and choose the Website Traffic objective. X's objectives are Reach, Video Views, Pre-roll Views, App Installs, Website Traffic, and Engagements.

Name it with the campaign key that is in your link.

Set the budget and either an end date or a named person responsible for stopping it.

Ad group

Goal: Link clicks. Do not choose Site Visits — that goal needs the X Pixel with configured events, and Ads Manager will send you into Event Manager to set it up. No pixel is installed.

Bidding: autobid is the simplest starting point. Maximum bid and target cost are also available, and target cost only applies to the link-click goal.

Set the schedule, locations, and audience settings the market's housing rules allow.

Placements: keep it to the timeline for a first campaign.

Creative

Promote a post that carries the property link — either an existing post you have already checked, or one written for the campaign.

If you use a website card or website button, put the complete property link in its URL field.

Preview the ad, click through, and confirm the `t.co` link resolves to the property page with all four `utm_` values intact. X may add `twclid`; the CRM handles it.

Submit.

6. After launch

Run the link test from the live ad preview on a real phone, including X's in-app browser. Confirm the enquiry arrives with source `x` and the expected campaign key, and that the email reached every recipient.

Watch for housing-related policy restrictions in your market. X restricts targeting for housing, credit, and employment ads in some countries, and may require approval before such ads run.

7. Problems

What you see	Cause	Fix
Ads Manager will not let you create a campaign	The account is not verified	Subscribe to the correct tier and wait for it to apply
Ads rejected for account quality	GIF profile image, incomplete profile, or a gated bio URL	Fix the profile; the bio URL must load without a login
The link shows as <code>t.co</code> in the post	Normal — X rewrites every link	Test that it resolves correctly; do not try to prevent it
Parameters missing after the redirect	Something else is also redirecting, or the link was truncated	Rebuild the link and retest; remove any shortener
CRM source shows <code>unknown</code>	<code>utm_source</code> misspelled	It must be exactly <code>x</code> , lowercase, one character
Ads Manager asks for a pixel	You selected the Site Visits goal	Switch the ad group goal back to link clicks

8. X Pixel and conversions

The X Pixel is not installed, by decision. It measures ad performance; it does not deliver leads, and the CRM never depends on it. Installing it would mean a privacy review, a consent mechanism, and code that fires only after the CRM has durably saved an enquiry. Until then, the Website Traffic objective with the link-click goal is the correct choice and needs nothing installed on the site.
